3. Informed Congressman Lucas (Tex.) that the device of the Research & Development Corp. in which he was primarily interested was a device to develop certain information for the Navy Dept. The Navy Dept. has indicated that they can secure this information from other sources, and therefore that the device is not needed. For this reason there is no purpose for CIA to proceed with its development. However, I informed the Congressman that our technical people were interested in another device of the Corporation, and that they were planning a trip down today to see it and consider its possible use.
